General Introduction WHAT IS PHARMACOGNOSY? Pharmacognosy, which literally means a knowledge of drugs or pharmaceuticals, has been a part of . . . Q: Find fields that are null in the object in apex I have a custom object which has about 40 fields in it. While searching for one of the fields, if that field is null, it should return me false. For example: My search field is Name. So if I search for the name 'rp', it should return me false as there is no entry present for rp in that object. I was thinking of having a look at the standard object and then get that field from there. But is there any other way to achieve this? A: You can use the equals() method in your filter query like this: IF(ISNULL(Record1__c), false, Record1__c.equals(Record2__c)) So if a field is null, it will pass the value check and it will return false if the values do not match. You can also use the IsBlank() method and pass it the field value from the standard object: IF(IsBlank(Record1__c), false, Record1__c.equals(Record2__c)) NOTE: Equals() is a value comparison, not a reference comparison. If the values are completely different, like "Rp" and "Rp", then it will return false. If the values are different at the identity level (like values of "Rp", "Rp", "rp", and "rp" are the same, but "Rp" and "rp" are not), then it will return true. Q: 82157476af
